

See how this room was decorated entirely with green paint.

Whether you're renovating or building your home, you need to consider the future. Even apparently small decisions like using organic paint can offer the property's occupants significant health benefits, as well as the wider environmental advantages.

We can show you how building a greener home doesn't have to be difficult, so neither your conscience nor your design need to be compromised. So to learn more about ideas like non-toxic organic paint, natural sheep's wool insulation or solar-powered heating, come and see us at The Big Green Home Show.
